Financing and public/private partnerships. In a recessionary environment, it is crucial for developers and contractors to have legal counsel adept in finding creative methods to finance projects. Our team has extensive experience advising clients on construction finance, including public/private partnerships, and we are known for developing innovative ways to structure project financing.

Licensing. Licensing in California, Louisiana, and Texas has long been an issue because of the large population of immigrant, non-resident labor. The McGlinchey Construction team has deep experience advising clients on the often-complex process for securing licensing and is highly skilled in addressing enforcement actions brought by licensing boards.
