

Coronavirus: Business and Legal Implications

March 12, 2020

While the course of the coronavirus (COVID-19) crisis continues to evolve, the longer-term strategic impacts of the situation also require analysis and strategic planning. Businesses need not only to plan for the immediate impact on their employees but also on the longer-term impact on their business plans.

McGlinchey attorneys offer the following preliminary thoughts on the possible business and legal impacts of the virus in three areas: business interruption issues, employment law, and real estate.

Read the full article on law.com.

Related people

Magdalen Blessey Bickford