

McGlinchey Stafford Adds Accomplished Commercial Litigator to Washington DC Office

September 06, 2019

McGlinchey Stafford PLLC is pleased to announce that Megan Starace Ben'Ary has joined the firm's Consumer Financial Services Litigation and Commercial Litigation teams in Washington, DC as a Member (Partner).

Megan brings extensive experience within the consumer credit, mortgage, and debt collection industries, representing clients in individual and class action litigation matters at the trial and appellate levels. Prior to joining McGlinchey Stafford, she was a partner at LeClairRyan PLLC. She is licensed in Virginia and the District of Columbia, and earned a J.D. from Villanova University School of Law.

"We are very excited to add Megan's unique perspective to our team," said Anthony Rollo, chair of the firm's Consumer Financial Services Litigation and Commercial Litigation groups. "Her depth of experience in consumer financial services litigation and class action litigation will further expand our national platform and serve our clients across the country."

"McGlinchey Stafford has always been a go-to law firm for consumer financial services litigation and I am excited to join this team of accomplished attorneys," said Ben'Ary.

Megan joins former LeClairRyan colleagues Mikelle Bliss, Shanna Boughton, Helen Mosothoane, and Patrick Voke in McGlinchey Stafford's offices in New York City and Dallas, as well as the firm's newly-established Boston office, which Boughton and Voke opened in June.

McGlinchey Stafford's Consumer Financial Services Litigation practice group boasts more than 80 attorneys in each of the firm's 15 offices across its strategically-integrated nationwide platform, who provide clients with a full range of comprehensive legal solutions while delivering exceptional service.
