

McGlinchey Stafford Receives Tier 1 Ranking From Managing Intellectual Property

July 28, 2015

McGlinchey News Release

McGlinchey Stafford PLLC is pleased to announce new Intellectual Property practice rankings in the latest edition of Managing Intellectual Property magazine's IP Handbook. For the third consecutive year, McGlinchey Stafford received the distinction of a "Tier 1—Highly Recommended in Louisiana for Intellectual Property" ranking.

In addition to the firmwide practice area ranking, Baton Rouge attorneys John F. "Jack" Sieberth and R. Andrew "Drew" Patty II were named "IP Stars" in Louisiana. Houston attorney Joel W. Mohrman was named an "IP Star" in Texas.

Additionally, New Orleans attorney Gary G. Hebert was mentioned in the publication for his "robust and well-regarded practice ... [that] emphasizes product liability defense. [Hebert] frequently acts on behalf of foreign and domestic manufacturers in the automotive, machinery, and consumer product industries across a spectrum of legal needs, including class actions."

"Intellectual property continues to be an area of growing concern for our clients across every industry nationwide," said Rudy Aguilar, Managing Member of McGlinchey Stafford. "It is an honor for our firm and our attorneys to be recognized by clients and peers for being at the forefront of this increasingly relevant area of law."

Each year, Managing Intellectual Property ranks leading intellectual property agencies and law firms worldwide, highlighting the country's prominent intellectual property attorneys in its IP Handbook. Results are based on a research process comprising more than 1,000 interviews of and surveys from peers and in-house counsel active in the United States.

Related people

Rudy Aguilar