

Successfully defended a British wastewater treatment defendant in antitrust action involving U.S. wastewater treatment industry

February 23, 2017

Represented a British wastewater treatment defendant in an action alleging antitrust, RICO, and unfair trade practices claims pertaining to the United States wastewater treatment industry. The case is significant because it addresses the viability of an antitrust action in a refusal to deal context. The case was won on dispositive motions.