Solid legal representation comes down to strong relationships and thorough communication. Clients bring us their most difficult problems, and I take that trust seriously.

Heejoong Kim is a multi-faceted litigator who represents clients in a wide array of commercial disputes. With experience ranging from premises liability, habitability, and motor vehicle accidents to claims involving false advertising, unfair competition, and employment disputes, he prides himself on building strong relationships with clients. Heejoong also litigates contractual, partnership, fraud, and fiduciary disputes.

With experience in single party and class action matters as well as alternative dispute resolution, Heejoong has researched, handled discovery for, and crafted arguments involving novel issues and complex claims from a variety of industries. He drafts and prepares persuasive legal documents to successfully uphold client goals in various settings. Heejoong has taken and defended depositions of plaintiffs, adjustors, witnesses, expert witnesses, members of law enforcement, and clients.

An intuitive people-person, Heejoong keys into emotions to inform his representation. This equips him to cultivate relationships with both clients and opposing counsel. He has an easy-going demeanor that balances well with his detail-oriented approach.

Prior to practicing full-time, Heejoong earned exposure to various areas of the law working as an intern, extern, and clerk for media and entertainment companies, health advocacy organizations, and the Los Angeles County District Attorney's Office.

Fully bilingual in Korean and English, Heejoong served for two years as a translator with the Aviation Department of the Republic of Korea Army Logistics Command. He was also a squad commander, church worship band leader, and a counselor.
