Getting to know the clients is one of my favorite parts of this job. When I take on a case, I keep their interests and objectives in the forefront of my mind. Indeed, my proudest moments come from obtaining favorable results inside and outside the courtroom.

Jameson Pasek offers a breadth of litigation experience across a wide variety of practice areas including securities litigation, employment, bankruptcy, intellectual property disputes, partnership/shareholder disputes, and class actions. Jameson is also experienced in representing financial institutions in commercial, business, and real estate litigation. Jameson has taken cases to trial, handled numerous motion hearings, and defended and conducted countless depositions. Prior to practicing complex commercial litigation, he was an attorney at one of Boston's leading medical malpractice firms.

Jameson employs a dynamic approach to the circumstances presented in each case. He is particularly drawn to complex cases that involve nuanced issues and enjoys the challenge presented by the wide variety of industries, clients, and areas of law within his practice.

representative matters

- As lead counsel, successfully defended a Boston-based real estate developer against breach of contract and unjust enrichment claims at trial before a three-judge panel.
- Trial experience representing a global technology company in a complex intellectual property dispute following a failed merger, which resolved via settlement. The settlement was subsequently breached resulting in a federal lawsuit, bench trial, and favorable decision.
- Represented an investment management firm in a fiduciary duties case concerning investments in two New York REITs resulting in dismissal of all claims.
- Represented a publicly-traded telecommunications company in a national class action involving consumer protection claims resulting in dismissal of all counts.
- Represented an accounts receivable company and prevented a class action by successfully arguing arbitrability (against a nationwide plaintiffs' lawyer) pursuant to the terms of service at issue.
- Represented investor members of a hedge fund in a membership dispute resulting in a favorable settlement following mediation; obtained dismissal of the related federal lawsuit.
- Represented the former CEO of a video platform technology company in a privately negotiated share repurchase.
- Counsel to a media company concerning an escrow funds dispute in S.D.N.Y. following a multi-million dollar acquisition.
- Counsel to a member of a limited liability company pursuing dissolution in Delaware Chancery Court. The limited liability company is owned by a renowned artist/actor.
- Counsel to the owner of an international apparel company in a complex shareholder dispute involving ownership of multiple realty trusts and corporations.
- Counsel to a military-contractor pursuing a multi-million dollar malpractice action following a government investigation by the U.S. Attorney for the Northern District of Indiana regarding billing practices.
