

Are you eligible for FEDS Protection?

If you are a Federal employee, then yes- all full-time and part-time Federal employees, regardless of position or level, are eligible for FEDS Professional Liability Coverage.

Protection should especially be considered if your duties include:

- Protecting our nation's security;
- Working in the intelligence community;
- Providing law enforcement or federal security;
- Managing or supervising federal employees;
- Making decisions on public policy or in the interest of the public;
- Working directly with the public;
- Providing HR functions;
- Obligating and administering federal funds or contracts;
- Providing medical, financial or other professional services; or
- Regulating products, businesses or securities matters.

Federal agencies will reimburse managers, supervisors & law enforcement officers up to half the cost of this insurance.

Check with your agency for specific reimbursement procedures or to see if you qualify for reimbursement. Payroll deduction is available to all employees regardless of reimbursement eligibility.
