Professional Liability Insurance Information for Federal Employees:

While you may be ultimately vindicated, defending against work related allegations, claims and lawsuits could easily cost you tens of thousands of your own dollars if you do not have a Professional Liability Insurance (PLI) policy in place.*

WITH FEDS PROTECTION:

You are appointed your own lawyer to counsel you and defend against work related allegations, claims and lawsuits. The FEDS professional liability policy provides coverage for (1) Administrative & Disciplinary Matters, (2) Personal Capacity Lawsuits, and (3) Criminal Investigations that you could be subjected to while performing your job.

(1) ADMINISTRATIVE & DISCIPLINARY MATTERS. FEDS Protection pays for defense for any administrative investigation into alleged misconduct or disciplinary or judicial sanction proceeding from any act, error, or omission committed by a federal employee while rendering a professional service. This applies to any administrative investigations including but not limited to: OIG, OPR, RMO, Congressional and Agency directed investigations AS WELL AS disciplinary actions.

(2) PERSONAL CAPACITY LAWSUITS. You Can Be Sued. DOJ Can Deny Representation. You Can be Held Liable for a Judgment. FEDS Protection pays up to $1,000,000 or $2,000,000 (depending on the policy limit you choose) of professional liability damages to federal employees who are sued for any act, error or omission which are committed or arise out of the course and scope of employment. Moreover, in the event that the Department of Justice exercises its discretion to deny representation, the policy also provides the legal representation necessary to defend. NOTE: Unlike similar federal employee PLLI policies, FEDS Protection's civil defense amounts are separate and distinct and not subject to the defense limits of the administrative and criminal provisions. In other words, legal representation for civil matters is not capped by sublimits.

(3) CRIMINAL INVESTIGATIONS.

Some of the most common criminal investigations involving federal employees are due to:

- conflict of interest statutes where intent is not a prerequisite to prove the crime,
- misappropriation of federal funds,
- release of privacy act or other statutorily protected information and/or
- something arising out of an allegation of misuse of position or authority.

FEDS PLI pays for legal defense up to $100,000 for any criminal investigation or proceeding into any act, error, or omission committed by a federal employee while rendering a professional service.
